RAWABI DRAWS INTERNATIONAL AND LOCAL CELEBRITIES

LIVE, WORK, AND GROW IN THE FIRST PALESTINIAN PLANNED CITY

The Truth Lies Within

Where does one begin to find the words to describe the impact of a project as large as Rawabi? In quiet times, I "rewind the tape" of memories more than 10 years old, to recall moments when I stood on top of the mountain that has now been transformed into the city of Rawabi. A euphoric experience that only dreamers understand, upon the realization of their ambitions. Today, we stand in the Q Center and watch the city alive with the energy, breath, and spirit of those who call it home, and those who make it their destination. Rawabi is their dream, as much as it is mine.

Stroll through the sidewalks of the Q Center, joining the thousands of people thrilled at the opportunity to shop and dine in an atmosphere that rivals anything found in the region. In spite of the occupation, Palestinians have the right to live a world-class experience, and are now welcome to partake of that experience in their own country, whenever they wish, in a beautiful city they built by themselves, for themselves.

Hundreds have found employment in Rawabi's new downtown hub, and thousands more work helping the city grow. No one has more faith, than I, in the indomitable nature of the Palestinian spirit. How I dearly would love to welcome back to Rawabi, today, the many thousands who saw it in its earliest days, when it was still a plan mostly on paper, with just a few strokes boldly made into this noble mountain. They were, and would be again, astonished and impressed with the magnificence of the project and bold vision of the Palestinians building it, creating a future for themselves on their own land.

This accomplishment was never easy. The path of progress is forward and upward. Geopolitical challenges on one end, and naysayers or defeatists on the other, who either cannot or will not understand the critical necessity of new housing and new jobs in Palestine. We are ALL occupied, every one of us; there is no Palestinian living in this country powerful enough to circumvent the realities imposed on us by occupation. No, not even me. Nevertheless, it is our right to live in dignity, contest all of the challenges we are facing, and pave the way for progress.

The occupation limiting the development and expansion of the city, infrastructure obstacles in matching international standards, and lastly a wave of negative false accusations and rumors. This will not stop us; we will persevere.

Mahmoud Darwish said, "Truth has two sides, and snow is black on our city." These words resonate with me. But I know that our collective will is as strong as our vision. Rawabi will be fully built, it will thrive and prosper and become a part of our nation's proud narrative. It is a promise I make to you today, and one I will keep.

Bashar Masri

Rawabi city was built upon an initiative and under the leadership of Bashar Al-Masri through a strategic partnership between Massar International and Qatar. The city is built on a strategic location north of Jerusalem in a region near Ramallah; it is located on hills overlooking the Mediterranean Sea from the west. Rawabi was constructed as part of the first integrated zoning and planning scheme of modern times, and with a modern urban vision and sustainable environmental practices on an area of 6,300,000 square meters amid a magnificent Palestinian landscape.

The first phase of Rawabi consists of 5,000 housing units, of which more than 1,000 apartments are ready to be lived in. The city will expand to 22 residential neighborhoods with a vast array of housing unit designs. In its first phase, the city will accommodate more than 25,000 people; upon completion, it will house more than 40,000 persons. The city's modern residential quarters embrace Palestinian social and cultural uniqueness and architectural heritage. The city will include vital facilities such as a modern multi-purpose mall for shopping and trade, a business ventures incubator equipped with the latest international technology to lead businesses and creative innovations, in addition to health centers and places for worship. The city launched Rawabi English Academy, to be followed in the future with a multi-resources educational and academic complex. An outdoor Roman-style amphitheater has recently hosted an audience of around 15,000 people. Exceptional entertainment facilities have been added so far, including the equestrian club, challenging high-adrenalin games, parks and green areas.

AUSTRIAN PRIME MINISTER DELIGHTED BY THE MAGNITUDE OF RAWABI

Rawabi was honored to host visiting Prime Minister of Austria, H. E. Christian Kern, who admired the professionalism and scope of Rawabi's planning, development, and infrastructure. Prime Minister Kern described the new city as a Palestinian achievement exceeding all expectations. Rawabi's enterprise-enabling ICT network and world-class utility infrastructure drew Kern's praise, who noted its potential to attract international firms and direct foreign investment to its burgeoning Tech Hub. "I truly did not expect Rawabi to be so large; it's one of the most beautiful development projects I've ever seen in my life," Kern observed. "The Palestinian people deserve to live in dignity at a safe and well-planned city like this one," he added. Rawabi founder, Mr. Bashar Masri, welcomed the Prime Minister to Rawabi and expressed pride and gratitude on behalf of all Palestinians that the city's progress drew the attention of diplomats and dignitaries from all over the world. "The high profile visibility of Rawabi and the acclaim for its achievements, encourage Palestinians to continue to strive and to aspire to even greater things," Masri stated. He also noted that visits of high-ranking political figures buttressed the city's efforts to attract international investors and helped serve its key objective to generate employment within the Palestinian economy, particularly for young professionals in the ICT sector.

BUSINESSES MAKE THE MOVE TO Q CENTER RAWABI ACHIEVES ITS MOST IMPORTANT OBJECTIVE

The Q Center is officially open for business. Last month, dozens of enterprises launched headquarter operations at the gleaming towers of the commercial hub that overlooks the city.

Down below, sidewalks, cafes, and retail stores hummed with life as the Q Center's new residents explored Rawabi's vibrant core. These forward-looking businesses have made the move to Rawabi with an eye on the future.

The Q Center offers ample, well-priced and well-equipped office space, allowing commercial tenants to expand operations to optimal levels. In addition, the Q Center towers offer a number of recreational areas for the employees to enjoy during their breaks. Many companies used the move as an opportunity to upgrade their workforce and to purchase new equipment, both of which can be more affordably housed in the sleek new offices at the Q Center.

Employee morale is high, with many expressing delight at the conveniences and comforts of the working life in Rawabi's bustling, clean, urban environment. The successful transition of these companies to the Q Center is a critical milestone for the city of Rawabi. Employment generation has long been the city's most important objective, and now completes Rawabi's pillars of "Live, Work, Grow".

As the lights come on in the Q Center, it becomes even easier to see that the vision of Rawabi as an economic hub is very bright.

GENERAL SUPERVISOR OF THE PALESTINIAN BROADCASTING CORPORATION VISITS RAWABI "THE CITY IS A SOURCE OF PRIDE FOR EVERY PALESTINIAN"

Chairman of the Board of WAFA News Agency and General Supervisor of the Palestinian Broadcasting Corporation (PBC), Ahmad Assaf, recently paid a visit to Rawabi to tour the new city and to discuss potential avenues for cooperation with Rawabi founder Bashar Masri. Assaf was accompanied by department heads from WAFA and the PBC. During their meeting, Assaf and Masri explored innovative ways to approach the media's use of Rawabi's unique infrastructure, particularly its sports and entertainment venues ideal for live event broadcasting. The city's many cultural attractions, including concerts and performances in WaDina's open-air amphitheater, are well-suited to promote artistic expression and cultural awareness at a national level. Assaf expressed appreciation for the high-quality infrastructure and well-organized logistics frameworks that underpin the city. "I heard a great deal about Rawabi before my visit," he stated, "but the reality has completely exceeded my expectations. This city is a source of pride for the Palestinian people and a testament to their ability to thrive and create an alternative atmosphere in the midst of adverse circumstances." Assaf also praised the recently opened commercial hub of the city, the Q Center. "This is undoubtedly one of the most impressive private sector projects in the history of the country," he observed. At the conclusion of his tour, Assaf discussed the intent of the PBC to launch a project to sponsor Palestinian performers at the amphitheater, already a competitor with the largest entertainment venues in the Middle East in terms of capacity, infrastructure, and technology. "We are ready to forge a strategic partnership with Rawabi in order to realize this vision of bringing Palestinian talent to the forefront of our region," he concluded. Masri welcomed Assaf's visit as a morale builder and a source of encouragement for the city's residents and workers. "It is important that everyone believes in the potential of Rawabi, and works together with us to achieve our dreams for Palestinians everywhere," he said. Masri commended Assaf's stewardship of the Palestinian media industry and praised the quality of news and information provided by WAFA. He welcomed the opportunity to integrate the national media into the daily fabric of life at Rawabi, which he believes would advance the interests of Rawabi residents and the Palestinian nation as a whole.

SPRINGTIME COMES AGAIN TO RAWABI

This year's winter rains coaxed forth an abundance of greenery to adorn Rawabi's hillsides. The almond and olive trees are in full leaf, and wildflowers of every color fill every nook and hollow of the rocky terrain.

Rawabi's architecture looks completely at home in this natural wonder of a landscape, the stone of the city's towers drawn from the hills upon which they stand. The city's urban green spaces are planted with indigenous flowers and trees, allowing the wild spaces to connect effortlessly with the cultivated areas in an aesthetically pleasing integration of natural and manmade environments.

From every vantage point within the city, picturesque vistas greet the eye. The well-designed buildings offer views from nearly every floor; ventilation and airflow have been carefully engineered to mitigate annoyances such as sound, air or light pollution. At Rawabi, all the conveniences of life in a well-planned city come with unparalleled access to a natural landscape that changes with every season.

Q CENTER OUTDOOR ENTERTAINMENT CREATES THE PERFECT SUMMER EVENING

The architecture of Q Center's courtyards lend it a unique ambiance; one particularly suited to live entertainment and performances. In support of the city's ongoing commitment to the arts and culture, musical bands and dance troupes regularly stage open-air shows for the enjoyment of residents and visitors dining alfresco or strolling the promenade.

Recently, the Palestinian dance troupe Oscar delighted its audience to an original and engaging performance with guests joining in to participate in some of the dance routines. Visiting Jordanian band Harget Kart graced the Q Center's courtyards with a special mix of Oriental and Western songs in a 3-day series, offering something new to delight the crowds each day.

LOCAL AND INTERNATIONAL JOURNALISTS AMONG FIRST TO TOUR Q CENTER

Representatives of local and foreign news media outlets were given an early opportunity to tour the newly opened Q Center commercial hub and office towers in advance of the public inaugural. Rawabi founder Bashar Masri was on hand to answer questions about the city, the commercial center, and Rawabi Tech Hub for the dozens of journalists who attended the special tour and briefing.

Rawabi is a Palestinian city with a universal feel. This is what I noticed when I entered the city and toured its beautiful buildings and streets. The city is perfect for family life with its schools, recreation spaces and a shopping center, the first of its kind in Palestine.

Suha al-Rimawi,
Radio 24 FM

We were delighted to be hosted by Rawabi, especially to be chosen for the inauguration of the Q Center and a tour of the city...a charming location, splendid panorama, well-designed modern structures...our best wishes for future progress!

Wafa Arouri,
Watan News Agency

As you explore the city of Rawabi tucked into the charming Palestinian countryside, you find yourself in a commercial center that matches those of the largest international business hubs... a superb design with a touch of Palestinian heritage and contemporary modernity.

George Canawati,
Radio Bethlehem

It was a special visit and we enjoyed the warm welcome and hospitality. I felt proud as I toured Rawabi's facilities and admired the quality of services. I enjoyed being with you at the inauguration of the Q Center, which is a project that makes us all proud.

Aboud Saad,
Hayat Radio

This investment surprised me with its international standards. The tour was well-organized, which facilitated our job of reporting on the great effort to establish this Center, which will support the national economy and employ many young people who face severe unemployment.

THE Q CENTER TAKES ITS PLACE AS THE JEWEL IN RAWABI'S CROWN

The Q Center, Rawabi's bustling downtown urban core, boasts the best of Palestine, old and new. Designed to evoke the spirit and ambiance of an Arab souk, this all new twist on the ancient marketplace transports you with ease between one world and the next. Enter through one of the 5 gates: Jerusalem, Gaza, Jaffa, Nablus, and Doha to find yourself in your new favorite shopping and leisure destination. Overhead lights twinkle and shop windows beckon as you stroll down the pedestrian-only promenades. Wide sidewalks lead to a host of entertainment options including Arabic, French, and Italian eateries, cafes, a movie theater, and an indoor playground. Rawabi's magnificent new downtown is not only for strolling and shopping; 12 high-rise residence buildings and 6 office towers flank the city center. The Q Center also hosts Palestine's first Tech Hub, a one of a kind enabling environment designed to support the three pillars of the ICT ecosystem: local and international company operations, entrepreneurship and innovation, as well as training and capacity building.

RAWABI'S FUN FACTORY: WHERE THE FUN IS MADE JUST FOR YOU!

Rawabi's Fun Factory is a large children's recreation space, filled with the latest in games of skill and chance, and beloved by all ages. The Fun Factory's celebration area is perfect for birthday parties and special events, with delicious snacks and beverages available for sale.

Children are well-supervised by trained, responsible Fun Factory staff and all the play equipment is regularly inspected to ensure it meets every safety regulation. With so many wonderful options for play, every child's experience will be uniquely their own at the Fun Factory!

SHISHAPRESSO OPENS IN Q CENTER

Shishapresso, one of the most popular cafés in Palestine, has opened a second branch at the Q Center in Rawabi. This family-friendly, customer-oriented eatery boasts a magnificent view and an outstanding guest experience for regular patrons and newcomers alike.

Shishapresso chairman Murad Howari seized the opportunity to expand operations to Rawabi based on the success of the new retail offerings at the Q Center. Howari, said, "I'm extremely pleased with our experience at Rawabi. The city is building a very strong platform for business-owners in the services industry. A strong services base helps us foster a more customer-oriented culture, which is overall a more sustainable business model. It's a win-win situation all around: for the owner, for the customer, and for the economy."

Shishapresso's new branch has been enthusiastically embraced by city residents and guests. With its stellar view and superb service, it's rapidly becoming a local hot-spot. Howari affirmed, "We are known for our attention to the smallest detail of the customer experience – our adherence to international standards in food service defines our brand and sets us apart from the competition. Rawabi is the right environment for companies that aspire to excel. With the success of this venture, we will certainly explore other opportunities here in the city."

RAWABI IN THE SPOTLIGHT: SMART CITIES IN FOCUS AT THE SECOND INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE FOR TEACHING AND LEARNING IN THE DIGITAL WORLD

In March, An-Najah National University's E-Learning Center in Nablus hosted the 'Second International Conference for Learning and Teaching in the Digital World / Smart Learning'. The conference, held under the patronage of Prime Minister Dr. Rami Hamdallah, aimed to raise awareness about recent global trends and best practices in this new and exciting educational arena. The conference defines Smart Learning as being "...based on reconstructing theoretical concepts in a scientific and practical way. It links information and analysis through critical thinking and scientific research. Smart learning also employs up-to-date electronic, communication and technological systems." Rawabi, home to Palestine's most extensive and technologically-advanced communications infrastructure, was discussed in depth at the conference as a premiere example of a "Smart City".

Rawabi was also one of the sponsors of the conference, which was attended by Palestinian government officials and business leaders from the community. Participants included Dr. Sabri Saidam, Minister of Education and Higher Education (representing Prime Minister Hamdallah); Dr. Allam Musa, Minister of Telecommunications and Information Technology; Dr. Maher al-Natsheh, Acting President of An-Najah National University; Bashar Masri, Chairman of the Board of Massar International and founder of Rawabi; Ghassan Jaber, Deputy Director General of the Arab Islamic Bank; and Dr. Saieda Affouneh, Director of the E-Learning Center at An-Najah University.

Speaking at the conference opening ceremony, Bashar Masri highlighted in his remarks that more than half of the current Palestinian population is under the age of 25, a demographic reality that underscores the importance of robust national job creation initiatives. Rawabi's Q Center, which hosts a large Tech Hub in a business-enabled environment, is designed to serve as a center of innovation and employment generation for the city and the country as a whole. Rawabi's Bader ICT Incubator and Fund has allocated $5 million in investment capital to jumpstart the promising ideas of entrepreneurs and budding industrialists and provide them a framework for growth. Rawabi Tech Hub, supported by a high-quality workforce and an unsurpassed ICT infrastructure, hopes to attract investors from the global IT industry as well.

THE EXERCISE STUDIO IS READY FOR ACTION

Every day, exciting things are happening at Rawabi, where steady progress is being made towards the goal of meeting every potential need of its residents. Coming close on the heels of the opening of the pharmacy, dry cleaner, supermarket, and other primary convenience outlets, Rawabi is pleased to announce the grand opening of its first fitness center for women. The studio is managed by personal trainer and fitness center owner, Haneen Mansour, who has been a fixture in the Palestinian health and wellbeing industry for years. Her sleek new gym offers three different types of exercise programs to suit the needs of women at every stage of life: Yoga, Pilates, and Zumba. All three of these internationally renowned fitness disciplines require the supervision of a certified teacher/trainer. All classes are led by trained and certified instructors.

Yoga: A physical, mental, and spiritual exercise, yoga improves muscle tone and promotes flexibility and balance. Yoga is practiced in a darkened and quiet room, which facilitates relaxation and eases tension.

Zumba: This Latin dance-inspired program incorporates an eclectic mix of dance steps from a variety of world cultures. An aerobic and cardiovascular workout, Zumba gets your blood pumping as you "dance to the music" under the guidance of the instructor, burning as many as 500-800 calories in a 1-hour session.

Pilates: A system of exercises using special apparatus in a stamina-building routine where the brain is called upon to execute controlled and sustained muscle movement. Pilates is a wonderful whole body workout that sculpts and shapes as it tones.

Haneen Mansour looks forward to working with women in her studio. "I am thrilled to be opening an exercise studio in Rawabi, which can be easily accessed by residents and by women from the surrounding towns and villages. As our programs' offerings expand, we will add different types of workouts and will also eventually offer optional co-ed classes as well."

CHECK AND CHECKMATE: RAWABI HOSTS PALESTINIAN CHESS CHAMPIONSHIP

The spirit of friendly competition was “king” at the city of Rawabi during the 5-day Palestinian National Chess Championship 2017. Held in the Understage hall, the contest was sponsored by The National Bank, with in-kind support from local businesses BCI and V&V Communications.

Forty of Palestine's top players faced off in a series of matches organized in accordance with the World Chess Federation's tournament guidelines; 9 rounds and a player time limit of 90 minutes. Tied matches could be challenged directly and winners established on total points. The player lineup originally included 12 competitors from the Gaza Strip, but unfortunately they were prohibited from attending at the last minute by the Israeli government. The tournament opening ceremony was attended by Major General Jibril Rjoub, Chairman of the Palestinian Olympic Committee and Chairman of the Football Association, and Bashar Masri, Executive Member of the Palestinian Olympic Committee and Chairman of the Palestinian Chess Federation. Both men expressed pride at the skill level of the players and their equanimity under tough competitive conditions. Rjoub and Masri also noted that the championship's location at Rawabi was an encouraging reminder of the ongoing progress being made within Palestinian society. Championship logistics were overseen by a joint commission with delegates from the city of Rawabi and from the Palestinian Chess Federation. Players, referees, judges, and board members of the Palestinian Chess Federation gathered at a preliminary organizing event to review the rules and regulations of the championship. The success of the competition prompted discussions of a more active promotion of the game of chess in schools throughout Palestine. Chess Federation representatives agreed to work to strengthen ties with the Palestinian Ministry of Education to incorporate chess more prominently within the public school extracurricular activity landscape.

MAJ. GEN. JIBRIL RJOUB: RAWABI IDEAL PARTNER FOR ADVANCEMENT OF PALESTINIAN SPORT

During his recent visit, Major General Jibril Rjoub, Chairman of the Palestinian Football Association and Chairman of the Palestinian Olympic Committee, toured Rawabi's extensive sports and recreation infrastructure. Rjoub noted that Rawabi's playing fields meet international tournament standards and expressed admiration at the well-built and well-equipped children's playgrounds and jogging trails. "All of this contributes positively to the promotion of sport and healthy lifestyles in Palestine," Rjoub observed.

At the Q Center, Rjoub announced that the Infinity sportswear store would stock the official kit of the Palestinian football team, along with other quality international sportswear brands such as New Balance, Avia, Fila, and Reebok. He confirmed that the Palestinian Football Association wished to explore mutual avenues of cooperation to promote higher levels of engagement with sport in Palestine together with the city of Rawabi.

Rawabi founder Bashar Masri welcomed Rjoub's remarks and spoke of the ability of physical sport and competition to strengthen the will to persevere within Palestinian society. "Every day, with each of our successes in Rawabi, we are meeting and overcoming challenges, just as in the world of sport. We need to be physically, mentally, and intellectually fit if we are to realize our dreams fully."

FORBES "UNDER-30" SUMMIT AT RAWABI

Premiere business journal Forbes Magazine, together with The Portland Trust and the city of Rawabi, drew local and international tech entrepreneurs to Rawabi for an innovative networking event for rising stars in the ICT sector. Modeled on similar gatherings Forbes holds around the globe, the Under 30 Summit was a first for Forbes in Palestine.

Forbes UNDER 30

For the city of Rawabi, expansion of the Palestinian ICT industry into a regional powerhouse is a top-tier objective. To that end, Rawabi Tech Hub offers a fully-enabled business environment for start-ups and established firms, a state-of-the-art technology training center, and an innovative co-working facility and startup fund. With the support of international investors, global firms, and a strongly supportive local infrastructure, the future looks brighter every day for Palestinian technology.

More than 50 professionals from 20 different countries joined a 60+ group of Palestinian businessmen and women working in technology and related fields. The event was attended by The Portland Trust founder Sir Ronald Cohen, Forbes Editor Randall Lane, Palestinian Higher Council for Innovation and Excellence (HCIE) Head Dr. Adnan Samara, and Bashar Masri, founder of Rawabi. Sir Cohen observed that Rawabi exemplified socially responsible investing with wide-ranging national and regional impacts. He congratulated Masri on the success of the project and on his perseverance in making the city a reality. In his remarks, Dr. Samara noted Palestine's encouraging steps towards becoming an economy with the ability to attract significant international investment, not only in technology but also in other sectors as well. He likened the story of Rawabi to that of the Palestinian people, who represent a vast reserve of untapped potential. He affirmed the HCIE's ongoing support for local innovation in tech and entrepreneurship and for bold national initiatives like Rawabi. Event participants discussed ways to accelerate growth in the Palestinian tech sector, brainstormed solutions to industry obstacles, and shared success stories. Potential partnerships and collaborative opportunities were explored as well.

MAJ. GEN. HAZEM ATTALA

PALESTINIAN POLICE WILL OVERSEE PUBLIC SAFETY AT RAWABI

On his recent visit to the city of Rawabi, Director General of the Palestinian Police, Major General Hazem Attala confirmed that Palestinian police forces will provide security for residents and visitors of the Q Center and to the Rawabi Municipality. "Just as in any other Palestinian city," Attala noted, "we fulfill our duty to the citizens by maintaining security and order in all jurisdictions." Attala noted that the police in Rawabi will soon be operating out of a dedicated police station within the city limits, which would serve the city and its residents. Attala and his high-ranking delegation from the Palestinian police force were welcomed to Rawabi by founder Bashar Masri. Masri thanked Attala and his officers for their public service, for their effectiveness, and for their steadfast commitment to maintaining the safety and security of people across the country, as well as in Rawabi. Masri also confirmed that construction of a permanent police station near Rawabi's city center would commence soon.

THE NATIONAL BANK OPENS FLAGSHIP BRANCH AT THE Q CENTER

With the Q Center already open and doing a bustling business, The National Bank has finished putting the final touches to its operations hub at the Q Center in Rawabi. TNB's newest branch will provide retail banking and financial services to the many businesses that have moved their headquarters to the Q Center, as well as residents and visitors of Rawabi and the surrounding towns and villages. Ahmad Haj Hasan, TNB General Manager, confirmed that he was looking forward to a long and productive relationship with the businesses, residents, and visitors of Rawabi. "We believe in the vision and mission of this city," Haj Hasan noted. "We believe the economy of the city is strong and viable and has a very bright future. It makes sense for us to launch operations here; in fact, given the size and scope of the Q Center's potential customer base, we are looking at expanded specialized financial services to meet their needs."
